JAAM (Just Another Art Movement) is a literary journal published by the JAAM Collective in Wellington, New Zealand. It has a strong emphasis on promoting the work of younger and emerging Aotearoa/New Zealand writers, alongside established authors.

It was founded in 1995 by Mark Pirie and other members of a writer's group at Victoria University, and is currently managed by Helen Rickerby and Clare Needham JAAM prints fiction, poetry, essays and artwork. It publishes a diverse mix of voices, including experimental, cutting-edge work.

JAAM is published annually, with funding support from Creative New Zealand.

Subscriptions within New Zealand are $30 for two issues (includes postage). Overseas subscriptions are NZ$40 for Australia and NZ$50 for the rest of the world.
